Burglars stalk area

Police caution subdivision residents

During the twilight hours, burglars have been working overtime in several Romulus neighborhoods, according to police who have recorded a drastic increase in the number of reported breaking and enterings in local residences.

Specifically, most incidents occurred between the hours of 5 and 8:30 p.m. and in two locations, the Oakbrook subdivision, south of Eureka and west of Middlebelt and the Windcliff Estates, south of Wick and east of Wayne Road.

Police recorded at least 10 burglaries during one week alone, five in Oakbrook and four in Windcliff. A home on Cogswell was also victimized as well as one business on Goddard Road.

In all but three of the incidents, the burglar forcibly kicked in the front, side or back door. In the others, entry as gained through a kitchen or bedroom window.

According to police, at least five video cassette recorders, three televisions, two radios, a stereo, microwave oven, table lamp, money, guns, jewelry and miscellaneous items were stolen from the residences. Tools were taken from the business.

Romulus police recommend that residents take extra precautionary measures to ensure the safety of their homes.

Residents come home from work and immediately leave thinking they will shortly return. When they don't, police noted, their homes are suspiciously dark and obviously unoccupied.

Leave lights on. Be careful about a routine whether leaving the drapes closed or gate open. Vary personal patterns, police suggest. Should you ever think someone is watching your home, drive around the block.

Observe your neighbors and ask yourself if they are home. Should you notice anything out of the ordinary, call the police immediately, police spokesmen recommend.

"We respond to every call. Last month a resident called to say he heard something at the IGA. We arrived to discover an armed robbery in progress," one police officer explained.

Police encourage residents to join the Neighborhood Watch programs in their neighborhoods. They have noted that areas where residents have organized, crime has distinctly decreased.

They suggest residents participate in Operation Identification where they borrow engravers to mark their drivers license number on their valuables and record the information with the police department.

"Residents can do a lot to help police. And one more thing," said another Romulus police officer. "Look your doors. You'd be surprised how many robberies happen with no signs of forced entry."

City land sale reviewed

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

Rules and regulations regarding city owned property will be revamped before any more city land goes up for sale, according to a decision by members of the Romulus City Council.

Several small problems have resulted in confusion by some residents during recent bidding processes.

A committee will be formed to study the process and recommend changes. Ultimately, according to City Assessor Matt Raftary, a panel of three people, "possibly the clerk, myself and a local real estate representative," will decide the fate of the submitted bids. Up until now, only the assessor has accepted or denied each bid.

The city clerk's office decides which city-owned properties are listed for sale. As part of the committee, a city planner would suggest that certain property be retained for future city use, council members noted.

City-owned property is let for bid three or four times each year, according to Raftary, who determines the equalized value of each parcel.

According to the city clerk's office, the public is notified of city land for sale in one of three ways: Signs can be posted on land or notices sent to individuals on a mailing list or published continuously for six weeks in the local newspaper.

After the final publication, usually the next day, the submitted bids are open in public at city hall. The names of the bidder and the amounts bid on the parcel are read, according to Sharon Walker of the clerk's office.

"The bids must be stamped with the date and time before they are opened at 2 p.m.," she said.

"In most cases, the bids are awarded to the highest bidder. Most of the parcels are priced under market value. They always get a good deal. A bid bond of 5 percent is posted on each bid," said Raftary.

Some confusion centers around the minimum bid, he noted. "My rule of thumb is $10 per foot of frontage or $1,000 an acre. Normal market value of any property in the city would be close to $40 per foot frontage."

"I can't tell them what to bid. I tell people to bid what you think its worth, not what you think you can get away with. You would have a better chance of getting it then," he said.

According to Raftary, parcels need a minimum of a 60-foot frontage for people to build. City-owned property ranges from parcels 20 feet to 20 acres wide.

"Each parcel has to be analyzed on its own merit," Raftary added.

After the recent opening of bids last month, one resident wanted to withdraw his bid after he bid on the wrong parcel because of numbering confusion on the map.

However, according to Raftary, once bids are open, the bidder cannot withdraw the bid. "He can either forfeit his bid bond money or pay the remainder of the cost of the parcel," he said.

One bid on several parcels cannot be split as another resident found out when someone underbid them on one of the parcels. "In a case like that, it's all or nothing," he said.

"We have to clear up any confusion on this now, from the day we acquire the property to the day we sell it."

Building boom?

Residents question future

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

Ecorse subdivision residents still don't know what to do.

Nearly 100 people attended a special meeting in city council chambers last month to discuss the future of the area in which they live and the possibilities available to them for relocation.

"This is a neighborhood in transition. It's like living in limbo," said one resident who wished to remain anonymous.

During the past several months, residents of this small close-knit community between Merriman and Middlebelt, south of Smith Road and north of the I-94, have watched new city development gobble up house after house throughout their neighborhood.

"Residents once lived in peace and tranquility with its cottage type homes and picket fences. Today they are encroached by commercialism and an airport flight path," said City Clerk Linda Choate.

Brandt Street has totally disappeared and at least half a dozen homes are been demolished on Hudson Street.

The neighborhood is characterized by small homes on large lots with tall trees. According to one resident, many residents are related or at least good friends.

McBride's arrived 152 years ago

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

President Martin Van Buren welcomed the state of Michigan into the Union 150 years ago. That same year, he signed documents granting 40 acres of land to the McBride family in Romulus, and Ada Scott and Ellen Koester still have that original land grant.

Together with their sister, Ruth Miank, who died last year, they were the three McBride daughters of William Leslie, Alexander McBride, their great-grandfather, moved to Romulus from New York in 1835, two years before Michigan statehood and the same year Romulus became a township.

The McBrides were among the first families to settle in Romulus. And since then, family members have battled hungry wolves, befriended Indians and most recently, watched their sleepy village transform itself into a prosperous city.

The McBride family is among the oldest who still live in the city.

"That's true, no matter how you say it," said 80-year-old Ellen, the baby of the family, who lives on Meredith Street. Ada is 87 and moved to Belleville last year. Ruth lived in a

Drug bust hotline

Local officials took another step forward in the drug-enforcement effort Monday with the implementation of a drug hotline.

Residents with any information about drug activity in their neighborhood, no matter how small, can directly call 941-DOPE. The recorded message will tell the caller that information is confidential only and that he has the option of leaving his name and phone number.

As the police department already receives a number of calls in a week, according to Police Chief Charles Wilmoth, this new method will allow a "higher degree of anonymity."

"We hope to get more tips. We don't need a complete court case. One tip can fill in a blank, or lead to another tip. We need just enough information to get started. Again, that number is 941-DOPE," Wilmoth stressed.

homes in the area, according to City Planner Dennis Meagher. "It is estimated there are now less than 90. The combined parcels would be about 80 acres," he said during the Jan. 13 meeting.

Area residents are concerned about the impending I-94 freeway improvements which, according to the Michigan Department of Transportation, is expected to claim a minimum of 18 homes along the freeway for the proposed Middlebelt intersection.

The Airlines Parking development and expansion on the west is expected to continue. Developer Wendall Flynn said, "I need room to expand so I'm buying a house here and there. But I have no hard plans for the area. The area is zoned business transitional."

"Maybe Flynn is our only hope," said another resident.

According to several residents, Flynn has offered to buy their land. While some residents adamantly objected, another responded that she sold her home and received more than a fair price. She said he was polite, returned her phone calls and "had no problems."

"I don't mind being ridiculed but I don't like taking the blame," said Flynn who stood up during the meeting and defended himself.

The Airlines Parking development along the newly dedicated Flynn Drive includes at the present time a high-rise office building, Marriott Motel, Hampton Inn, Bob Evans Restaurant and a Maritell Motel.

McAnally called the meeting to explain possible alternatives to residents. "No one is forcing you out. Leave only if you want to. You don't have to be panicked into action. Don't do anything you don't want to," she told residents.

The city has offered residents an incentive package to relocate within the city. Builders would construct model homes on city-owned lots. The lots would cost the resident nothing and below-market home financing could be available with city grants or through the Michigan State Housing Development Authority, according to McAnally.

Residents were also offered the option of forming a corporation, "to sell your land as a unit."

"If all owners joined together, the land as a package deal could be much more valuable to the owner and net a greater return. The city would work with interested residents to create a corporation," she said.

Larry Swift of Burton Street questioned if he would receive market value for his house and noted that his property taxes have dropped.

City Assessor Matt Raftary replied that land values have decreased because surrounding developments are not residential.

Residents were told to retain all receipts from any household improvements. Meagher added that a public hearing would be conducted before any land is condemned by the State of Michigan which offers home owners up to $15,000 for relocation and renters, up to $4,000. "We can't tell residents when this will happen. Nothing is definite," he added.

"The city does not want to lose residents who have paid taxes for years. It's a question of who do you trust, private or public development. We just want to help these residents help themselves," said McAnally.

We just need direction. This whole thing is really very confusing," said a resident.

"I'd like to get out," said another resident, "just tell me how."

Annual dog and cat clinic planned

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

The city of Romulus summons all four-legged creatures and their owners to attend the "Annual Romulus Inoculation and Licensing Clinic" for both dogs and cats.

The Romulus Animal Control Department will sponsor the event from 2 until 4 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 21 and 28 in the old DPW building at the corner of Shook and Bibbins streets.

At that time, according to Department Director Steve Banko, both one- and three-year rabies vaccinations for dogs will be administered by Dr. M. Wirgau of the Taylor Veterinary Clinic.

The cost for the one-year shot is $5 and $10 for the three-year shot. Also available will be a five-in-one booster to include, hepatitis, leptospirosis, para influenza, parvo and distemper shots for an additional charge. Cat inoculations will also be available.

Licenses for unneutered male or female dogs cost $5 for one year, $9 for two years and $13 for three years. If the dog is neutered, the cost is $1.50 for one year, $2.50 for two years and $4 for three years. For senior citizens, the price is half.

Cats are not required to be licensed. However, dogs must be licensed by March 31 of each year, Banko noted.

"This service is provided for the safety of our citizens. There's always the chance of rabies. This is not just a little threat. Last year alone, the city recorded between 40-50 dog bites. Luckily, most dogs were vaccinated. The license identifies what vaccinations the dog has received," said Banko.

If a dog is not licensed, the owner will be ticketed and required to vaccinate and license his pet. The ticket can cost up to $20, he noted.

According to ordinance, Romulus households are limited to two dogs but can have as many cats as they would like.

"We've had numerous complaints of cats at large. The department is going to work on that problem next," he said.

centennial home next door to Ellen. She was 82.

The three McBride sisters were raised on the Ozga Road family farm in the house their grandfather built. The log cabin has long since been torn down, according to the sisters.

Together Ellen and Ada vividly recall stories and memories of life on the family farm during the early days of Romulus.

"Indians roamed through here and frequently visited, my grandmother would tell us. They parked their canoes on the banks of the Huron River and followed a trail through the woods to Detroit. And on their way they would come right into the house, walk around and touch everything, especially the curtains. Grandma was nice to them and they were nice to her. She would give them a loaf of bread when they left," recalled Ada.

"It was nothing for dad to plow up Indian heads," Ellen added.

"My grandfather told about the time he went rabbit hunting. With a handful of rabbits, a pack of wolves started to chase him. Just as they caught up with him, he'd drop a rabbit. He told us, he dropped the last rabbit before he entered the home and slammed the door. To this day, that story scares me," said Ellen.

Both women attended the local country schools. In 1917, Ada was the only girl of three students to graduate from the new four-room red brick high school, on the site of the police station. Ellen attended high school in Wayne.

"I remember the day they paved main street for the first time," said Ellen. "The streets were all dirt. My dad called mother from outside. We all came. They opened the street," he said. Our farm was about a mile from town. 'Listen,' he said, and you could hear horses trotting on the new pavement. I can still hear that sound," Ellen said.

Introducing a Totally New Television System

Dawn of a New Era in Television

ZENITH
DIGITAL SYSTEM 3 COLOR TV

SOUND BY BOSE

Zenith presents a bold new line of Color Television with Sound by Bose. A sound with amazingly deep, rich bass. A sound with startlingly crisp, clear highs and mid-ranges. A sound you'd expect to hear only from an audio component system. This spectacular new sound, combined with Zenith's all new Digital System 3 TV gives an audio-video experience that you have to see and hear to believe.

- ▲ Bose-developed Waveguide speaker system produces deep, rich bass from a small enclosure.
- ▲ Conventional tweeter and mid-range speakers are combined into two specially-designed, front-firing Twiddlers™
- ▲ Dynamic Equalization Circuit automatically balances the relative volume of the bass with mid-range and high frequencies.
- ▲ Play CDs or other audio components through the TV sound system
- ▲ Use the Audio Only switch to turn off the video
- ▲ Three Amplifier Sound System
- ▲ Built-in World System Teletext Decoding
- ▲ 27" diagonal screen size
- ▲ Computer Space Command 7200 Remote Control
- ▲ MTS Stereo Decoder
- ▲ Chromacolor Contrast Picture Tube for superior color and resolution

dan's dogs

morris

Of the dozens of people who call our school asking for advice on dog problems, very few are difficult to talk to. The majority of people are sincere and serious about trying to find a solution to some problem their dog is presenting at home.

Then there is that one person out of 100 who knows more than we do, and we wonder why they called in the first place. Their conversation with us goes something like this:

Dan - "Hello, this is Dan Morris. How may I help you?"

Caller - "I have this puppy who's giving me trouble. Can you help me, Dave?"

Dan - "It's Dan. I'll try. What seems to be the problem?"

Caller - "Well Don, it's because my dog is still a puppy. That's why it's misbehaving."

Dan - "What, exactly, is the dog doing wrong?"

Caller - "Well, give me a chance to tell you! This stupid dog is digging holes big enough to drive a truck through all over my yard. And he eats my flowers, too."

Dan - "You're leaving the dog alone too long in the yard."

Caller - "He barks all day."

Dan - "Bring the dog indoors and when you do let him outside, supervise him and bring him inside as soon as he's done his duty."

Caller - "He's only bad because he's a puppy."

Dan - "Sometimes we create the problem ourselves. He should be kept indoors at all times."

Caller - "My neighbor said that purebred dogs are more trouble than mongrels."

Dan - "Why is that?"

Caller - "Well my neighbor's sister's cousin-in-law who went to obedience school in Wyoming five years ago told her. And you know, that's supposed to be where all the really good trainers live."

Dan - "If you bring your dog indoors you'll eliminate 90 percent of your problems."

Caller - "You sound as if you think my dog is really hopeless. Do you think he can be trained when he's out of his puppy hood?"

Dan - "He can be trained now."

Caller - "He's too young. That's what all the schools I've called told me."

Dan - "Then you must follow the instructions of the trainer you respect most from the school you like the best."

Caller - "I was told you were strict and unbending. You sound just that way, too."

Dan - "I'm only telling you what is best for your dog and yourself in the long run."

Caller - "But you didn't tell me ANYTHING."

Dan - "I told you to bring the dog inside, and the digging will be eliminated."

Caller - "That's no solution. I'm going to call my neighbor's sister's cousin-in-law. She can tell me what to do. I should have called her in the first place."

Rise and shine

Bake up some bread for an extra-special treat

By CHEF LARRY JANES
ANP Special Writer

"Nothing says lovin' like something from the oven. . . " Where have we heard that before? Bring back memories?

Breadmaking is a soothing pastime, but one that many cooks find difficult to fit into busy schedules. It's about time somebody came up with recipes and techniques that are tailored to the hectic lifestyles of today. TaDa! Ask and you shall receive.

For the best homemade bread, use stone ground, preservative free flours found in natural food stores and refrigerate them to insure freshness. If you're lucky, you might be able to locate a store that will sell you flour by the pound so that you won't have to have several bags of flour cluttering up what is sure to be an already packed refrigerator. The term "hard wheat" indicates a high gluten content, while "soft wheat" indicates lower gluten. You are probably most familiar with the following flours:

All-purpose, unbleached, while flour is a combination of hard and soft wheats with a moderate gluten content. This is an ideal flour for French bread and most white breads.

Basic bread flour is a hard, wheat flour with a high gluten content that is the perfect candidate for blending with whole grain or low gluten flours like rye, whole wheat or oatmeal to ensure high rising.

Whole wheat flour comes two ways - a low gluten flour is best for pastymaking, and a high gluten for breadmaking. Both give a fine, nutty flavor to any loaf.

Rye flour comes in three varieties: light, medium and dark. The light is the most highly sifted, and the dark contains the most fiber. Use it according to personal taste. Rye flours are low in gluten and produce loaves that are moist and dense.

Pumpernickel flour is a flaked, rye flour that results in a very coarse, fibrous grain. It adds an interesting texture to bread.

Soy flour is a fine source of vitamins and minerals with no gluten. Add small quantities, unnoticed in the taste of breads, for a much higher nutritional value.

When making bread, it is recommended that you utilize an instant-read thermometer for checking the temperature of all liquids. Taylor is one of the most reputable around and this will probably set you back about $10-$15, but it is well worth it. It's not just for breadmaking but can also be used for meats and sauces. Water will add a slightly-chewy texture while milk will insure a cake like crumb and is usually used when making brioche and rich breads.

Sour cream is a great substitute and will produce a richer result than milk with a subtle tang that you will surely notice. The addition of beer gives a malty, sweet flavor and will boost the rising power. Don't forget the use of cider and fruit juices that add a distinctive flavor, especially to cake-like breads and rolls.

If you're from the old kitchen like mamma, substituting fresh cake yeast for dry granulated is a snap if you remember that three-fifths of an ounce of yeast cake equals one tablespoon dry yeast. One envelope of dry yeast contains one tablespoon. Always check the expiration date of the yeast. It will store best if kept in the refrigerator.

The addition of salt will temper the growth of yeast and is hence used not only for flavor but also to control rising. It can be eliminated without radical changes to the finished loaf of bread for those of you watching your sodium intake.

When it comes to sweetening bread, sugar, molasses, maple syrup and fruit syrups will not only encourage rising but will also add a great sweet flavor to your bread. Sugar does not belong in French or Italian breads.

Your bread. Sugar does not belong in French or Italian breads.

When people ask my "secret" in making bread, I usually confess to an old standby recipe with three risings, not in a warm oven but at room temperature. This is a key to fine bread texture and flavor made through a slow rise. Before "punching down," allow the bread to rise at least two-three times the volume. If desired, bread can be refrigerated to slow the rising effect.

So no matter what the day, time or temperature, a loaf of homemade bread brings a smell of freshness, wholesomeness and love to whomever gets to share in its slicing. Try these recipes and let me know what you think.
Bon Appetit!

EGG BREAD

- ¾ cup milk
- ¼ cup (½ stick) unsalted butter
- 1 ½ tablespoons sugar
- 1 ½ teaspoons dry yeast
- 2 cups flour
- 3 eggs, room temperature
- 1 ½ teaspoons salt
- 2 to 2 ½ cups flour
- cornmeal
- 1 egg beaten with 1 tablespoon water

For sponge, combine milk, butter and sugar in a small saucepan and heat to 90 degrees. Transfer to a large bowl, stir in yeast and 2 cups flour. Cover with plastic and allow to stand a room temperature for 2 hours. Generously grease a large bowl. Stir down sponge with a wooden spoon and beat in eggs, salt and enough flour to make a soft, sticky dough. Knead until smooth and elastic, about 10 minutes. Transfer to a prepared bowl, turning to coat the entire surface. Cover and let rise at room temperature until more than doubled, about 1 to 1 ½ hours. Press down and allow to rise again.

Generously sprinkle a flat baking sheet with cornmeal. Turn dough out to floured work surface, pressing down with palms of hands. Shape into a loaf and transfer to prepared baking sheet. Cover with a towel and allow to rise 1 to ½ hours. Brush loaf with beaten egg. Bake until browned at 375 degrees for 35-45 minutes.

CLASSIC FRENCH BREAD

- 2 ½ cups cool water
- 2 ½ cups flour (about 10 ounces)
- 2 ½ teaspoons dry yeast
- 3 to 3 ½ cups flour
- 2 ½ teaspoons salt

Combine water, 2 ½ cups flour and yeast and beat by hand for 2 minutes. Transfer to a large bowl, cover with plastic wrap and let stand at room temp. for at least 4 hours. Lightly grease a large bowl. Add 3 cups flour and salt to yeast mixture, blending well. Stir in enough additional flour to make a soft, sticky dough. Knead until elastic, about 15 minutes, adding more flour if necessary. Transfer to a prepared bowl turning to coat the surface. Cover and allow to rise 2 ½ times the bulk, about 3-4 hours. Press down dough and let rise again. Generously sprinkle a flat baking sheet or peel with cornmeal. Press down dough, turn onto a lightly floured surface and divide dough in half. Pat each into an oval. Fold each in half lengthwise, pressing edges together. Arrange seam side down on a surface, stretch smooth into a cylinder, starting at the center of each cylinder, stretch dough until it is about 13 inches long.

Arrange dough on a prepared baking sheet, cover with a towel and let rise until doubled in volume. Cut 4 slits on the top of each loaf, bake 15 minutes in a 450 degree oven with a pan of water in the bottom. Remove water and continue baking for about 15 minutes more or until dough sounds hollow when tapped.

CINNAMON BREAD

- 6-7 ½ cups flour
- 6 tablespoons sugar
- 1 ½ teaspoons salt
- 2 packages active dry yeast
- 1 cup milk
- ¾ cup butter or margarine
- 3 eggs, room temp
- melted butter
- ½ cup sugar
- 2 teaspoons cinnamon
- 1 egg white, slightly beaten

In a large bowl, thoroughly mix 2 cups flour, 6 tablespoons sugar, yeast and salt. Combine milk, water and butter in a saucepan and heat to 110 degrees. Butter does not need to melt. Gradually add to dry ingredients and beat 2 minutes. Add eggs and ½ cup flour. Beat 2 minutes. Stir in enough additional flour to make a stiff dough. Turn out onto a lightly floured board and knead until smooth, about 8 minutes.

Place in a greased bowl and turn to grease top. Cover and let rise until doubled, about 1 hour. Meanwhile, combine ½ cup sugar and cinnamon. Punch down dough, divide in half, roll each half into a rectangle and brush with melted butter. Sprinkle with half the sugar mixture. Repeat. Tightly roll as for a jelly roll and place seam side down in a prepared bread pan. Cover with a towel and let rise till doubled in bulk. Brush with egg white and bake in a 375-degree oven for 45 minutes.

Area cooks sought

Cooks of all finds are wanted by the Associated Newspapers to appear in the regular "In the Kitchen" column of the cooking section.

In the column we feature the cook and a short biography along with two favorite recipes. A photo of the cook in the kitchen is also featured.

If you or someone you know would make a perfect guest columnist for "In the Kitchen," send the name to: "In the Kitchen," Associated Newspapers, P.O. Box 578, Wayne, Mich. 48184.

Be sure to include a name, address and phone number where the cook can be reached during normal business hours.

February brings some new cherry surprises

George Washington could not tell a lie, and cherry lovers wouldn't pass up the chance to add another dessert recipe to satisfy their sweet tooth.

Here's out latest cherry pie treat, guaranteed to bring praise from both cherry lovers and chocolate fanatics.

CHOCOLATE-COVERED CHERRY PIE

- 1 ready-made choclare flavored pie crust
- 1-12 oz. pkg. miniature chocolate chips (reserve 16 chips for garnish)
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1 envelope unflavored gelatin
- 2-8 oz. pkgs. cream cheese softened
- 1/2 cup sour cream
- 1/2 tsp. almond extract
- 1/2 cup heavy whipping cream, whipped
- 21 oz. cherry pie filling

- whipped topping
- 16 maraschino cherries
- 16 mint leaves

Melt chocolate chips in a double boiler, stirring until smooth. Set aside.

In a saucepan, combine milk and gelatin. Set aside for one minute. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly until gelatin dissolves. Set aside. Beat cream cheese, sour cream and melted morsels in a mixing bowl until fluffy. Beat in gelatin mixture and almond extract.

Fold the whipped cream into chocolate mixture. Pour half of the chocolate mixture into pie crust. Pour cherry pie filling on top of chocolate layer and pour remaining chocolate mixture on top. Chill.

Garnish with whipped topping, maraschino cherries, chocolate chips and mint leaves.

Serves eight.

Teaching us a lesson

Sometimes, you really can't see the forest for the trees.

That was especially applicable to us during the past weeks as we attempted to find a replacement for Lothar Konietzko, our chief photographer who is recovering from a heart attack. We agonized over how to find someone to fill in for Lothar, wracked our collective brains attempting to think of a part-time photographer who might be called upon on such short notice and, in short, panicked.

"Wait," said Belleville City Editor Joan Dyer. "I recently did a story on the media class at the Ford Vo-Tech Center and the students might be able to help out."

We contacted instructor John Prusak who calmly and rationally cooled our fears and told us he had several students he felt were advanced enough to help us out. Additionally, he reminded us, he had both morning, afternoon and evening students, and therefore had photographers available to us at all hours. He explained that the students would need detailed, specific instructions, but that he didn't foresee any problems with assigning the jobs to them.

The man is a master of understatement. When we received the first batch of photos, we were truly taken aback. These students, most of them high-school age, had turned in professional, quality work that was certainly satisfactory for publication.

We expected missed assignments, we expected out-of-focus, unusable pictures and we conjured up all types of catastrophes we would have when dealing with these "amateurs." What we got from these students was a professional's dream, competence, a good attitude, dependability, energy and a high degree of responsibility toward the job they committed to do.

Then the phone calls and comments to advertising account representatives began. These students were complimented by nearly everyone who dealt with them for their patience, attitude and degree of professionalism.

Why didn't we think of them sooner? Because, we, like so many others, overlook the vo-tech center which is nearly in our backyard. How long has it been since we've gone there for lunch? We did awhile back, and found good food at excellent prices served by enthusiastic, bright kids who act like they enjoy bringing your meal.

And the other services and classes available at the center are nearly too numerous to mention. All in all, we are guilty of taking the vo-tech center for granted as are many of the area residents. The training provided young, and not-so-young, people there is invaluable. The teachers take what they do seriously, as do most of the students, and for us to be less than extremely proud of having a facility of this caliber and quality in our area is doing them a disservice.

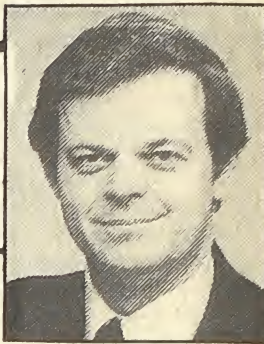

We owe the kids in media productions a large thank you for helping us out of a serious situation, but we also owe them a debt of gratitude for teaching us a lesson.

If taxpayers have any doubt about the quality of education their taxes provide students, they need only visit the vo-tech center and take a look at the type of education provided there.

This facility can teach us all a few things.

The game of life

Someone whose opinion I respect made a passing reference to me as a "student of people" some time ago. This individual has a trained eye by occupation, and therefore I found that an interesting comment, and one that has given me added insight.

During the time that I have been laboring at this weekly column, I have written about many things. But in retrospect, I have by-and-large turned my attention, and I hope yours, to the human condition.

I have done so because I find it fascinating, and in the hope that, in some small way, I might accomplish good through the stimulation of your thinking. For I am but one, and you are many.

In my ponderings about people, I have, I guess, spent more than my share of time thinking about the range of personalities one encounters in life and particularly in this business.

As a result, I find myself making my pedestrian observations, and in turn attempting to find some inner truth which I had not focused on previously.

Those of you who have the fortitude for it read my thoughts and in turn share them and the experiences that preceded them, with me.

At the risk of gross simplification, I see in my travels people that frequently can be roughly sorted out into three basic categories.

There are those that one might easily categorize as "nice house...nobody home." Even here, upon closer inspection, we might find a great deal more than might first meet the eye.

I would generally place within in this group those who have not done very much with their God-given existence. These people, according to this exercise, probably are basically vegetating, taking one day at a time, content with having achieved food, clothing and shelter.

It may be that they see themselves as the person they were "back then." They often are stuck in their high school years much like our comedic friend Gallagher who is "stuck in the 60s."

If I may, let me add here that there is no rightist attitude in making these observations, only simple truths from this writer's experiences.

The relatively simple folk in this first category are often a cheery sort, at least from outward appearances. They talk about other people in their spare time, and see themselves as having jobs rather than careers.

In our second group, we find those who tend to have had a measure of success in their life's pursuits. They probably have a moderately stable home environment, family structure, and career.

These folks tend to talk about events, "How about this Iran thing...?" or even "How about them Tigers?" These people are the backbone of our society, the people that keep business functioning, the economy moving by working, paying taxes, and buying things. You see them in the malls, theaters, MacDonalds and supermarkets.

Then there are those in a third category. These are people who own businesses, take risks, who often feel a sense of responsibility for the future of mankind and society. They probably talk about ideas rather than people or events. They more than likely appear, at least, to be living the good life, enjoying or at least experiencing, relative prosperity.

This third group is probably better educated either in formal education or at least rich in what is in vogue to call, so I'm told, "real world experience."

These folks are probably more upwardly mobile, and tend to be Machiavellian, more inclined to be contorted in accomplishing an end, either for the good of others or for selfish gain. Here we are more apt to find still water that runs deep, as opposed to the rattle of an

ray day speaking

Is anybody listening?

Quite often, I ask myself that question in place of having my own hearing checked, my speaking abilities analyzed or my psychological structure studied. I wonder why so often what I say goes unnoticed and what I mean goes unheard.

Take my name, for example. From my early years I have been forced again and again to repeat the spelling of my rather simple name, and I have even at times begin to join the scores of others who doubt whether my name is for real or is just a coverup for some great scandal I committed in days past.

I wouldn't complain if people asked me to spell my last name if it were Engelmeyer, Fobolak or Schomemburgher. I wouldn't even get too upset if people would ask only once what my last name was after I just explained my name was "Ray Day."

But those are my problems. Surely other people—who don't have a rhyming first and last name—must have some kind of difficulty in getting people to listen.

Take the fast food restaurant. I spend hours trying to rehearse my order for the drive-through window in advance of my arrival there. I mean would all the people inside the restaurant who can hear the drive-through orders because the speaker is tuned to "maximum" really want to hear someone stumble through an order? Of course not. So I rehearse.

ray day

Without one ounce of hesitation comes "Can I have a quarter pounder and a large diet-Coke, please" from my mouth. Proud of my performance, I sit back and await the total.

But do the fast-food restaurant clerks really listen? From the speaker in the giant, glass-enclosed menu I hear, "Would you like a large fry to go with that?"

Realizing that the clerk is only concerned with the nutritional balance of my body, I kindly answer "No, thank you."

"Would you like a small fry then?"

"No, thank you, I said."

"Would you like an apple pie?"

"No, just a quarter pounder, please."

"How 'bout a shake?"

"No, thanks anyway."

"An ice-cream sundae?"

By this time I am convinced that I stutter profusely and that the ingoing speaker in this giant menu is defective. So I answer, "No. I want a quarter pounder and a large Diet Coke. That is all."

"Is that with or without cheese?"

Now I realize that all the world is not a fast-food restaurant. But I wonder if people everywhere have this allergic reaction to listening.

I mean, people will only feel the wood surface of a door if a sign saying "wet paint" is displayed on it. Others will only touch a grill in a restaurant if that grill is marked "hot."

I have finally convinced myself that people don't want to listen anymore. Maybe we all have hearing difficulties from those Walkman radios everyone owns. Maybe we've become like our great computers which are great examples of habitual "non-listeners."

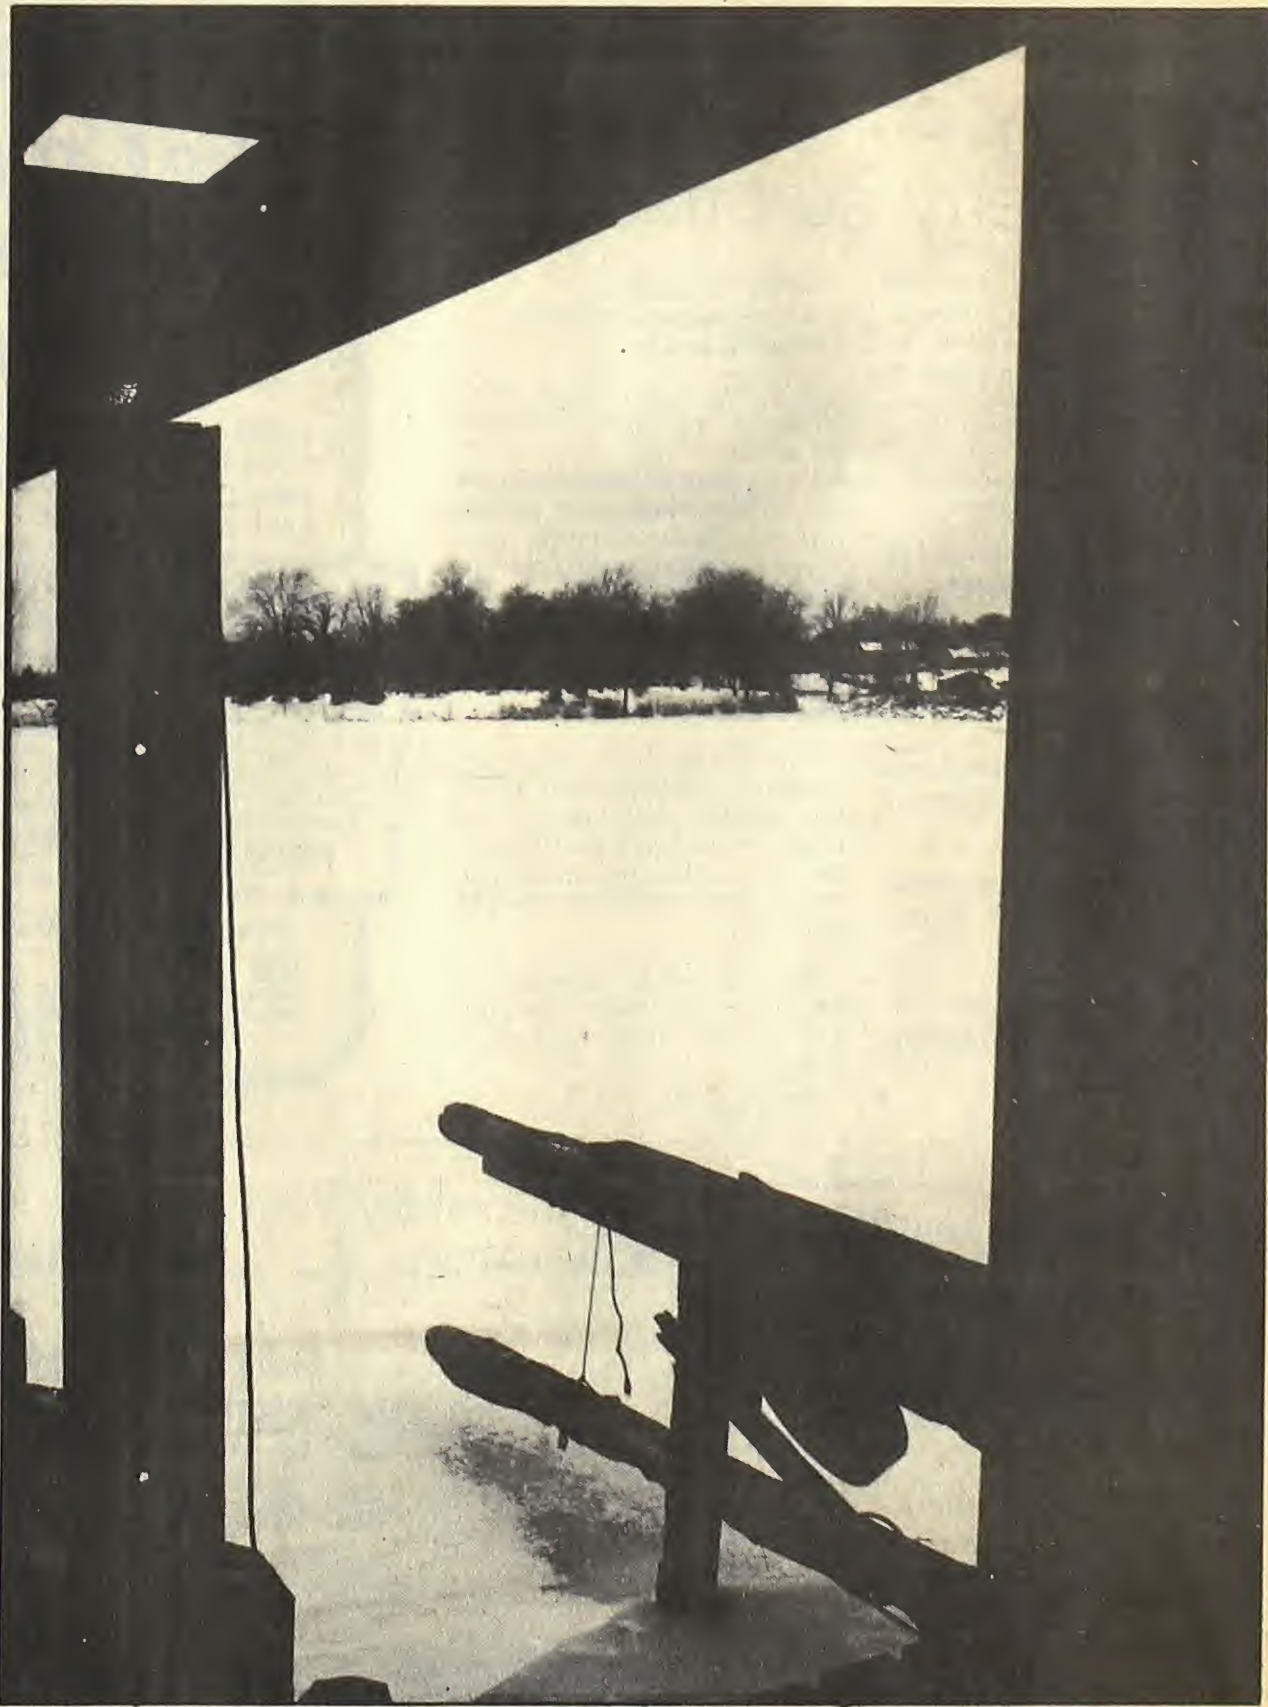

I don't know, but I think it's all down hill from here. Just recently I saw a sign on the lawn of a church which led me to believe that people don't even listen to themselves anymore. Now I know the church goes who placed the sign on this tree had only good intentions. But perhaps "Don't place signs on the trees" could have been worded somewhat differently.

For those of you who have read down this far, I guess I owe you a word of thanks. Maybe I'm wrong. Maybe some people do listen.

But then again, I'm standing firm with my previous contention. I bet you just wanted to know if I ever did get my quarter pounder and large diet-Coke. I don't think I have enough room left in my allotment of space to finish that story because, you see, when they told me how long my column should be, I, well, didn't listen.

Hospital sale proposed

Indigent care addressed

By RAY DAY
ANP News Editor

A proposed agreement — that Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara said will take the Westland Medical Center “off of the county’s hands” and turn the former county hospital into a specialized-care facility — has been reached between Wayne County and a local health-care-agency consortium and is expected to appear before county commissioners for approval next month.

McNamara announced last week that the consortium will lease and eventually buy the hospital for $7.56 million over a three-year period. Although the sale was first opposed by Commissioners Kay Beard (D-Inkster) and Richard Manning (D-Detroit) who feared the action would eliminate indigent care for several low-income Wayne County residents, many county officials are now optimistic that the sale will become a reality after a four-year agreement for providing indigent care was reached between the two sides.

“I think this is now a victory for indigent care in western Wayne County,” said Vern Davis-Anthony, director of the county health and community services. “We were really concerned with indigent care before, but (this agreement) puts government in the role of monitoring indigent health care while increasing the number of hospitals in the area which provide it.”

The newly-formed consortium, “Westland Health Network,” is the new corporation formed by the Peoples Community Hospital Authority, Oakwood Hospital, Garden City Osteopathic Hospital and Southwest Detroit Hospital Inc. Currently, the Westland Medical Center is owned by Wayne County, although the business and financial operations of the hospital are leased to Southwest Detroit Hospital Inc.

The proposed sales agreement between the county and the consortium includes the transfer of ownership of the building and all equipment after a three-year payment period. Under the plan, Westland Health Network would pay $1.5 million the first two years of the plan with the balance being due Dec. 1, 1989.

The county Board of Commissioners must approve the sale to make it final. However, a lease agreement between the consortium and Southwest Detroit Hospital Inc. to put the new plan of action in place immediately should be signed before the end of the month, according to a spokesperson for the consortium. The board of directors of the new Westland Health Network will meet for the first time on Friday.

The consortium and county are also expected to sign a proposed memorandum of understanding to provide indigent, pediatric and prenatal care to western Wayne County residents for the next four years. Currently, these services are provided at the Westland Medical Center. Under the new plan, all of the hospitals owned by Westland Health Network will participate in providing the services, leaving the Westland Medical

History of the hospital

The Westland Medical Center has been a subject of deep controversy in recent years, from talks of being sold and phased out to sublease agreements and the sale to a consortium. A brief history of the facility follows.

BIRTH

The Wayne County General Hospital was constructed as a branch of the Wayne County Infirmary and psychiatric complex at Eloise. The hospital, building “O” of the Eloise complex, was constructed in 1959. The building cornerstone was laid in 1961.

The new hospital building was comprised of six floors, 28,000 square feet of floor space and 5,742 square feet in the laundry wing. Total cost of the project was $15 million.

The original purpose of the facility was to admit patients who were transferred from the infirmary and psychiatric divisions of Eloise, admit indigent county residents, both welfare and medical, who would be accepted without question, accept emergency cases regardless of economic status and admit patients able to pay for medical services on a space-availability basis.

FINANCIAL WOES

After many studies of financial problems of the county-owned and operated hospital, County Executive William Lucas acted in August 1984 to end the county participation in hospital care.

In a sharp controversy, the county entered into a 10-year lease-purchase agreement with Southwest Detroit Hospital, Inc. Southwest assumed the responsibility for overall management and operation of the hospital, although the county continued to be the owner of the facility.

After an initial year of “relative improvement,” Southwest announced that the continued operation of the now-called Westland Medical Center would threaten the financial viability of the corporation.

Southwest — which could legally sublease the facility without county approval — began seeking proposals from interested organizations concerning a take-over.

FUTURE

Southwest has proposed the lease and eventual sale of the facility to Westland Health Network. If the $7.56 million sale is approved by the county commission, it would mark the third time the hospital has changed names in its history.

Center to phase out acute care services and concentrate on mental health and rehabilitation, Anthony said.

“Really this is an immediate lease agreement and a eventual sale. Southwest doesn’t need the county’s approval to lease the operation. That can go through immediately,” Anthony said.

County Executive McNamara had proposed selling the hospital to the consortium last month. County Commissioner Beard and several nurses

Area supports triple bunking

By JOAN MARY DYER
Belleville City Editor

Triple bunking to alleviate overcrowding at the Wayne County Jail gained the approval of the Conference of Western Wayne on Feb. 13.

Wayne County Sheriff Robert Ficano told the conference members that the triple bunking would open up 500 spaces for prisoners, but still leave the county 1,400 spaces short of the 1971 level. He told the group that the triple bunking could reduce the per diem cost of housing prisoners from $61 under the present system to $40 to $45.

The sheriff said there is a misconception that prisoners are housed in their cell areas all day. In reality, the prisoners spend only eight hours in their cells and the remainder of the day in classrooms, recreation areas and exercise rooms. Ficano said prisoners will be screened to avoid placing inappropriate individuals in the triple-bunking facilities.

Additional facilities to house prisoners are now being sought at six sites, Ficano said. Because of the new Detroit ordinance mandating 30-day sentences for individuals convicted of carrying weapons, the need for more jail space is inevitable, according to the sheriff.

Members of the conference received an update on the Emergency 911 program from Joseph Benyo, a report on the Auto Theft Prevention Authority from Canton Public Safety Director John Santomauro and information from Ulrich Bauser of the Central Wayne Sanitation Authority.

At the March 13 meeting of the conference, participants have been requested to bring statistics on expenses and receipts from their district courts. At the Feb. 13 meeting several members questioned the funding of the district courts and the lack of control the participating cities have over the local courts.

Romulus Mayor Beverly McAnally, secretary of the CWW, indicated that she has had difficulty in obtaining information on court costs. Therefore, she said, it is difficult for city officials to determine whether or not they are benefiting financially from the district court.

Westland Mayor Charles Griffin, CWW chairman, said he would like to open a discussion on the financing of the courts which is now done partially by the state and partially by the participating communities.

The groom-to-be is a 1984 graduate of Romulus High School. He works at Wash-tenaw Door and Trim.

The two are planning an Aug. 22 wedding.

Carl Bath – Bonnie Johnson

Chadwick – Barlow

Mrs. Nellie Chadwick and the late Richard Chadwick of Romulus have announced the engagement of their daughter, Theresa Kay, to Donald Wayne Barlow Jr. of Canton. He is the son of Donald Wayne Barlow Sr.

The bride-elect is a 1983 graduate of Romulus High School and is attending Eastern Michigan University. She will graduate in April with a bachelor of business administration degree in accounting information systems.

The groom-to-be is a 1985 graduate of Plymouth-Salem High School and attended Schoolcraft Community College before entering the Army. He is stationed at Fort Hood, Texas.

The two are planning a June 12 wedding at St. Aloysius Catholic Church in Romulus.

empty tin can.

We're all in there somewhere. Perhaps we are one of them, or more than likely, we are a composite of more than one of the three.

Apart from the pigeon-holing of people according to the depth of their thinking, material wealth, or vocational success, we find the matter of mental health.

Across the board, we have those who run the scale from well adjusted to those who are like a raging inferno inside. We find simple folk who may be poor in worldly possessions but who have an outlook on life for which most of us would quickly trade.

There are many who succeed in their simplicity just as there are those who live in agony with their success. For many in the most successful group by worldly standards, the price has been high. Troubled families, divorce, or addiction to all manner of vice is no stranger to many who live in the fast lane.

We can find our best prospects for the Betty Ford Rehabilitation Center in the high rollers group. The toll that risk taking, a high sense of responsibility, an overly high need to succeed can become too high a price to pay. Mercifully, there are many who want to "have it all," and manage it with a sense of unshakeable equilibrium that holds it all together.

There is a sense of rationalization that prevails through all groups. We all tend to look at others, point and say "I'm glad I'm not in their shoes," or perhaps, "Here I am doing it right, and look at all those other people doing it wrong".

As you peer out through those apertures in the front of your craniums good friends, let us not forget that we cannot know what it is like to be the possessor of another's body or soul. We can only try to imagine.

As we look at those who came from child abusing homes, or have suffered the hell of bloody Vietnam...as we look into the eyes of an innocent child who is yet to experience both the joy and agony of the human experience...may we be at peace within and with whatever hand we have been dealt.

Yes, we should strive for excellence, yes, we should search for a better existence. Yet, if we cannot find inner peace and a degree of happiness, we are not a worthy custodian of the most valuable treasure with which any soul can be entrusted, the breath of life.

May we all use our fleeting time wisely, for all too soon it will be gone.

See you next week.

She is the new granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Ward and Angeline Hicks of Romulus.

at the hospital staged a protest outside the facility, calling on the county administration to consider indigent health care, emergency room and health care in case of a large-scale disaster at the Detroit Metropolitan Airport in Romulus before making any decisions.

"I want this hospital to remain an acute care facility, a level-one trauma center, not to be turned into a short-term or psychiatric rehabilitation center," Beard said last month.

Beard wasn't quite certain how she would vote on the sale when asked Monday. The county commissioner said she was planning a personal study of the idea and will either support or denounce the sale once her study is complete.

But several hospital workers, who feel their jobs may be threatened by the sale of the hospital, are still adamantly opposed to any plan that would convert the facility from an acute care center to one specializing in mental health and rehabilitation.

"Westland Medical Center is geographically and strategically located to accommodate any emergency care or disaster at the Metropolitan Airport," said one nurse at Westland Medical Center who asked not to be identified. "People should support a regionalized trauma system with good first response personnel and a hospital that can do anything."

According to Anthony, the county spokesperson for the sale, the Westland-based hospital would no longer provide emergency room or acute health care. Instead, these services would be available at all other hospitals in the consortium. And, although spokespeople for the consortium have indicated that staff relocation within the group will be a result of the new changes, no major employee layoff is expected.

"I am sure they (Westland Medical Center employees) will not lose their jobs because of this. I know all of the services will continue," explained Marlene Hayman, vice president of marketing and public relations at Oakwood Hospital. "Once the plan is developed all of those things will be worked out. But right now, everything will stay the way it always has been."

Although the commitment to provide these services is for only four years, Anthony is confident that the consortium will continue the work beyond that time frame.

"It is my feeling that we are 'overbedded' for acute care right now in western Wayne County," Anthony said, "and we don't have enough beds to focus on some of the specialty areas. After the four years are over, we'll have to negotiate these things again. But I'm sure (the consortium) will agree to provide the services."

WINNERS CIRCLE

BY LAURIE KIPP

The Michigan Lottery receives many questions on instant games. The following summary provides answers to the most frequently asked questions.

Q: Has the Instant Game prize structure changed?

A: Instant game players have requested more small prizes and a chance to win more frequently. Responding to their wishes, the Lottery has changed the prize structure of the current and next few instant games.

Q: How is it different?

A: Instead of putting a major amount into a million-dollar grand prize drawing, that money will go for smaller prizes to create more winners. For example, in the current game, "Doubling Dollars," the full prize total of nearly $10 million will go to prizes from $2 to $1,000. The game beginning March 10, "Cash Deal," will also offer cash prizes of $2 to $1,000.

Q: How many Instant Game winners were there in the last fiscal year?

A: There were nearly 16 million cash winners whose prizes ranged from $2 to $100,000.

Q: Do you have a breakdown of those winners?

A: Yes. The majority of the wins ranged from $2 to $150. There were 323 players who won $10,000 awards; 32 won $20,000; 14 won prizes ranging between $10,000 and $20,000; 18 won $50,000, while ten won $100,000.

Q: How much money was won in all Lottery games including Instant Games?

A: In the last fiscal year, prizes won totalled $481 million. This does not include the full value of large prizes paid over a 20-year period.

Q: How many of those prizes were for $1 million or more?

A: There were 94 players or clubs who won such prizes, including five instant game grand prize winners who won $1,000 a week for life, with a minimum of $1 million.

Q: How is such a prize paid out?

A: As in all Lottery states, most major prizes in the Michigan Lottery are paid out over a 20-year period.

Q: What if a winner dies before the 20 years pass?

A: The Lottery ALWAYS pays out the full prize amount. The remainder of any prize is paid to the estate of the deceased winner.

For submitting the question that led to this column, Bertie V. Hutson of Wyandotte has been awarded 50 tickets in the current instant game, "Doubling Dollars."

If you have a Lottery question not yet covered in these monthly columns, send it to: "Winners Circle," Michigan Lottery, P. O. Box 30077, Lansing, MI 48909.

Makeup can make a difference, according to Brenda Knowles of Jean Claire Skin Care Center. Above is the before cosmetic look, and below is the application of makeup and the final product. ANP photos by Vanessa Tamowsky/Special photographer)

More than 'skin deep'

Beauty is in the eyes, ears and face to the beholder

By SHERRY WOODARD
ANP Staff Writer

Know yourself, know your features, know the look you want. Those are just three of the rules in the unwritten book of make-up artist Brenda Knowles.

"Too many women look at too many perfect models in the magazines and say, 'Oh! That's for me,' when it's not," Knowles said.

Knowles' official title is "Esthetician"—taken from the word esthetic; having to do with beauty. She practices her craft at Jean Claire Skin Care Center in Belleville.

"The one thing that gets me is when women come in for a new look and when you give it to them they say they don't like it," she said.

These women actually did not want a new look, she explained. They really wanted to keep their old look, which is fine.

However, if Knowles feels the old look does not work for the person, then she will gradually try to wean them off it by introducing new make up colors and techniques in small doses.

When it comes to selecting the right colors for eyes, Knowles follows this rule: match your make-up to the outfit you are wearing.

"It goes against everything I've been taught," she admitted. "But I think you should wear the colors on your eyes that you wear in your outfit."

Recently, cosmetic and fashion industry leaders started preaching to the masses (of women consumers) that everyone is born under a season which determines the colors that look best on them. Knowles said she does not work under this theory.

"I've had a lot of people come in and say, 'I'm summer,' and they stick with those (colors characteristic of the summer season) and it doesn't look good on them," Knowles said.

Once the right eye color is found then you should match your blush and lipstick to that shade, Knowles explained.

"I've seen people wear purple eyeshadow and still want to put on their orange lipstick," she said. That is a classic example of how not to pair cosmetic colors.

While not adhering to the notion that every woman has only one color that is "her color," Knowles does admit that some shades are not well suited for some people.

For instance, a woman with blond hair, blue eyes and deeply tanned skin should not wear browns, she said. And for heaven's sake, everyone should stop putting black on their eyelids, she added with a touch of exasperation.

Women who are blond with pale skin should not wear reds, Knowles said. Black women with dark skin should not wear pinks and white women with very pale features should not wear yellows, she added.

As for women so blessed by nature that they can get away with wearing no make up at all, "that's beautiful," Knowles said.

As for the rest of us, "at least take it off when you're just going to the store," Knowles said. "Give your skin a rest."

Hair is key beauty factor

By JOAN MARY DYER
Belleville City Editor

It's known as "a woman's crowning glory" and has inspired songs, poems and plays about its attractiveness and desirability. The loss of it caused Samson to lose his strength, and a wave of it falling over one eye made Veronica Lake famous. The subject is hair and the fads, fashions and folklore surrounding it continue to fascinate us.

Marcie Harlow, proprietor of Harlow's Unisex Styling Salon in Wayne, has noticed an increase in the attention that both men and women have given to maintaining a healthy head of hair. Another similarity that Harlow has observed is that most individuals are looking for simple, easy-to-maintain styles with very few members of either sex seeking extreme looks.

Trends are different from one area to the next, Harlow said. The popular style in Wayne may not be the same as that in Livonia or another neighboring city, she said.

"Most women are looking for easy upkeep on their hairdos. They want a 'perm and go' style," Harlow said. "This is especially true of working women. They want to be neat and well-groomed, but they don't have a lot of time to spend on their hair."

During the spring and summer, Harlow expects to see a lot of braids and pony tails as this once-popular fad makes a 1987 comeback. Harlow also anticipates that men will continue to be more fashion conscious. She reported that during the last few years men have begun to have their hair highlighted with color and take advantage of grooming techniques which were once the sole domain of women.

Harlow calls home permanents and home hair coloring the twin hair hazards. "The perms can over process or under process the hair and the coloring never looks like it does on the box," she said. "We have a sign in the shop that reads, 'You wreck it, we correct it.'" The cause of the dreaded "split-end syndrome," according to Harlow is too much shampooing, excessive blow drying, too much chlorine or too much sun. Harlow recommended conditioning to correct the problem and also the avoidance of excessive heat and chemicals. Hair can be shampooed daily, if needed, she said, but should be conditioned. Harlow also recommended that hair be trimmed every six to eight weeks. Hair that is not trimmed on a regular basis will break, she cautioned.

Don't forget the other beautiful features

The smile says it all

By MARK NICHOLAS
ANP Staff Writer

Beauty is only skin deep? Think again, more and more people are becoming concerned about the beauty or cosmetic appeal of their teeth as one of their major health concerns.

According to Dr. Sheldon G. Eichler, D.D.S. for the Newburgh Heights Dental Group, a person's station in life can be enhanced with proper care of the teeth. "People tend to get better jobs and a better position in life when they keep their smile and health up, in the mouth area."

There are some revolutionary techniques that have made the care and appearance of the mouth an easier goal to achieve, according to Eichler. "There are many things a dentist can do to improve a person's confidence in themselves," Eichler said that three methods in particular, are very successful. "Bonding, crowns and implants can make the teeth much more appealing."

Bonding, according to Eichler, is the more economical of the three procedures. Bonding involves the use of a composite material, used to cure discolorations, fill gaps and other dental problems. Although bonding is a very effective method, Eichler said there is another alternative. "Bonding is a very good method, but that's getting old hat. Don't get me wrong, it should be done, but the new ceramic crowns are perfect." According to Eichler, the new crowns are amazing. "You just can't tell the difference between the teeth and the crown anymore, some dentists can't even tell the difference," he said.

Implants are another method Eichler mentioned, and these are also improving with modern technology. "The new implants can convert a patient who has to rely on removable implants, to a fixed implant." The newer implants may involve the use of surgery, according to Eichler. "The sub-periosteal, the bone under the gums is where the structure fits. It lays on the bone and fittings come through the gums, this is where the appliance would fit on."

Denture wearers can also get a boost of confidence and comfort, according to Eichler. "Staples are used strictly with dentures. It (staple) makes the denture resist lateral movement, this can increase confidence and comfort."

Two things, according to Eichler, that have reduced pain and installed confidence are methods to combat temporal mandibular joint and the advent of adult orthodontics. Eichler said that temporal mandibular joint (where the lower jaw connects to the skull) has been the site of extreme pain in the past. "Understand that people have suffered from t.m.j. disturbances for so long in the past. Modern technology has reduced that pain." Some of the discomforts that go along with t.m.j., according to Eichler are: headache, stuffy ears, joint pain, blinding, blurred vision and other things as well.

The advent of adult orthodontics has enabled older people to achieve cosmetic beauty in their teeth, Eichler said. "Adult orthodontics has allowed people to receive care that otherwise would not. People who never had the advantage of going to the orthodontist are now going, 40- and 50-year-olds," he said.

The "new dentistry" is allowing new things to be done, according to Eichler. "Dentistry has become painless and thus is allowing more to be done. There hasn't been a lot of improvements in dentistry in the last six or seven hundred years. With these new methods, I would say that there has been some definite improvement now."

Eyes, ears are beautiful

The eyes and ears, two of the most needed sensory organs of the human body, are also two of the most looked after and beautied by people.

The steps to beautifying the ears, economically, are not as complicated as one might think. According to Rhonda Spoonamore, cosmetologist at the Hair Station, 212 Main Street in Belleville, ear piercings are very popular. "We do a lot of ear piercings," Spoonamore said the rumors about the pain of ear piercing are exaggerated. "It pinches a little but it doesn't hurt that much. There is no danger if the proper care is taken. We have a special ear piercing gun that has a 24 carat stud."

Spoonamore, who has been at the Hair Station for 11 years, said she has noticed some trends developing recently. "We have been doing a lot of three earring piercings and also some top-of-the-ear piercings." These multiple piercings are becoming commonplace, according to Spoonamore.

A trend that Spoonamore has seen grow rapidly is popular among young people, she said. "We are seeing a lot of teenagers wearing earrings that don't match, a different one on each ear." Spoonamore said that while these trends are unusual, she has seen some unique ear piercings. "We've had people that went with five ear piercings, from the top of the ear, all the way down to the bottom."

The Hair Station also is involved in eye beautification. According to Spoonamore, she is a teacher of sorts when it comes to eye shadow. "Basically when I do eyes, I will teach the person how to do eye shadow. The proper way to use it is to know that it's there, but not too much," she said.

Besides eye make-up, Spoonamore said there are other ways to beautify the eyes. "We do eye-brow waxing as well. This is designed to keep the eyebrows up and arched. The waxing takes about five to 10 minutes, depending on what is being done. It (eyebrow waxing) cost from $4 to $8, again depending on how much work is involved."

Down not out

Although Romulus, the defending Class A state champs, may be down this year no one is counting them out of the district tournament picture. Cage spirit still alive at Romulus

Ida finds Eagles are flying high

The basketball spirit is still alive and well at Romulus High.

Coach Dan Henry's Eagles left little in doubt about their ability to win games last week as they crushed Wyandotte 72-42 on Tuesday then came back on Friday to bury Ida, 93-62.

The two victories lifted the Eagles to an 8-6 overall won-lost record.

"Our kids did everything right out there this week," said Henry who went on to caution that, "It also seems that every time I say that it backfires on me."

Henry will know if the pieces are fitting a bit tighter this week when his cagers take on Adrian. (They played Ypsilanti last night, a team that marred Wayne Memorial's record a week ago.)

"Ypsi has an excellent basketball reputation and we got to be ready to play or we're in trouble," Henry commented.

Wyandotte managed to stay abreast of the Eagles for only the first eight minutes when the Bears trailed by three (13-10), then Romulus ripped off the next eight points as Billy Johnson scored eight of his 20 and Juan Street sank six of his 19 as the Eagles took a commanding 35-18 at the halfway mark.

It was all downhill for the winners after the initial half as Henry turned loose his bench for the entire fourth period.

Johnson's 20 stood up as the game's high while Street, a 6-6 center, finished with 19 and Brent Bonam added 10.

Against Ida, the two fought to a 12-all standstill after the first eight minutes before Johnson, Street and Terry Jones again supplied the ammunition to break the game open. Each had six points as the Eagles soared to a 34-24 half time lead.

Romulus then mopped up with a 29-17 third period advantage and a 30-21 edge in the final stanza.

Four Romulus cagers reached double figures with Johnson's 21 topping all scorers. Street checked in with 21 while Luther Shannon added 14 and Samuel Keith sank 10.

Belleville conquers Wolverine 'A' wrestling rivals

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

With every member of the team contributing, Belleville captured the 1987 version of the Wolverine 'A' Conference wrestling championship and returned the crown to their display case after losing it a year ago to Lincoln Park.

"All of our wrestlers finished in the top six," noted Belleville coach Gerald Malecek, "thus each had contributed points toward winning the championship."

Belleville had dominated the league for the two previous years prior to losing to Lincoln Park in 1986.

With four of their wrestlers winning individual titles and two others reaching the finals, Belleville managed to pick up 187 points to easily defeat its nearest challenger, Wayne Memorial. Wayne had 113 points and the Zebras were followed in the final standings by Lincoln Park (108.5), Southgate Anderson (96), Monroe (96), Fordson (76.5), Trenton (65) and Wyandotte (19.5).

Belleville's Dave Reed (105), Dave Brendtke (145), Bill Sparrow (155) and Bill Ashley (155) emerged from the conflicts at Fordson with gold medals. The Tigers had the runners-up in Joe Yuhas (126) and Tim Clearwood (119).

Reed proved to be tough and ready for the tournament. A third place conference finisher a year ago, the 105-pound senior managed to defeat last year's champ and runner-up, Paul Seycatl (Fordson) and Kevin Labelle (Monroe) en route to the crown. He did it after sustaining an elbow injury in the finals. The unseeded Belleville grappler reached the finals where he found Trenton's Kelly Schimmell waiting for him and, after a dramatic confrontation which was halted because of Reed's injury, Reed came back and was awarded a narrow 6-5 decision.

Brendtke also had an excellent opponent in Scott Lapere, a 145-pounder from Wayne Memorial. The Tiger wrestler came out in front of a 9-3 decision and with the gold. Sparrow stopped Fordson's Hossein Abdallah, 9-4, to win the title for the 155-pound category.

Ashley returned to the Belleville (See CHAMPS, page 4-B)

Champs just perfect in conference

Belleville High and Coach Gerald Malecek brought the curtains down on the dual meet wrestling season Thursday night with impressive victories over Ann Arbor Pioneer and Ann Arbor Huron.

The Tigers turned back Pioneer, 38-24, and stopped Huron, 40-24, to lift their overall record on the season to 10-1. (Belleville finished 7-0 in the Wolverine 'A' Conference this season."

I am very happy with the record, and am proud of our kids," Malecek said. "We had some problems early in the season, but they seem to have been all worked out. The kids are wrestling well."

Joining a group of 16 other area high school teams, Belleville is scheduled to wrestle in the Class A District on Saturday at Gibraltar Carlson.

The top four finishers in each of the weight classes will qualify for the Class A regional championships scheduled to be conducted a week from Saturday.

Here are the results of the Belleville - Ann Arbor Pioneer dual meet:

98 - Rob Gray(B) dec. John Milroy(AAP), 12-0
105 - Dave Reed(B) was dec. by Sean Knight(AAP), 6-2

Next stop for Tigers: League championships

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Coasting past Dearborn Fordson last week, Belleville swimmers will travel to Trenton today to see what they can do to break up Monroe's monopoly of the Wolverine 'A' Conference championship.

And stopping Monroe may take more than Belleville and the rest of the conference have—Monroe, the defending champ is ranked sixth in the Class A state ratings.

"We would have to swim very well and they poorly in order for us to upset them," cautioned Belleville Coach Bill Snider, "but they (Monroe) have been swimming rather well lately."

The diving preliminaries for the conference championships get underway today while the preliminaries for the swimming events are scheduled for tomorrow (Thursday). The championships at Trenton will be decided on Friday, beginning at 6 p.m.

Belleville will take a 6-1 conference and a 9-2-1 overall re-

Champs didn't get title

By TOM MOORADIAN

The best team didn't walk away with the South Central Conference wrestling championship trophy.

With six individual champs and with all 13 of their wrestlers reaching the finals or the consolation finals, Romulus proved that it had the best team at the conference championships.

Coach Wayne Schimming's Eagles amassed 217 team points to finish atop the five-team final standings. Adrian was second with 190.5, followed by Ann Arbor Pioneer (176.5), Ypsilanti (169) and Ann Arbor Huron (125).

However, since Romulus isn't officially scheduled to become a bona fide member of the SCC until the 1987-88 school year, the trophy went to Adrian. Medals however were awarded to those who earned them.

Six golds went to Schimming's wrestler. Recipients of first place medals from Romulus included: Heavyweight Steve Anderson, Tony Venturini (98), Dennis Corder (126), Jim Schlener (138), Joh Bergman (145), and Trevor Asher (198).

The Eagles also had runners-up in the 155-pound weight class thanks to Mark Dubyak and 167-pounder Ralph Farrell. Third place awards went to Romulus's Tim Kosikowski (112), Rick Champagne (132) and Ken Chapman (185) while Charlie Crosby (10-5) and Bruce Boyd (119) finished fourth in the conference.

Schimming said he was "very proud of his team."

"I want to congratulate our wrestlers on defeating all of the teams at the South Central Conference tournament," Schimming said after the Feb. 14 "Valentine's Day" meet. "We had every member of our team in the finals and we walked away from the meet with six first places.

"I realize it is tough on the kids to wrestle knowing that even though they beat every team during the season as well as winning the league meet they couldn't claim the (first place) trophy. They handled this situation very maturely and understandingly," Schimming concluded.

cord into the meet. The Tigers had little trouble with Fordson as they swept nine of the possible 11 events, capturing both relays.

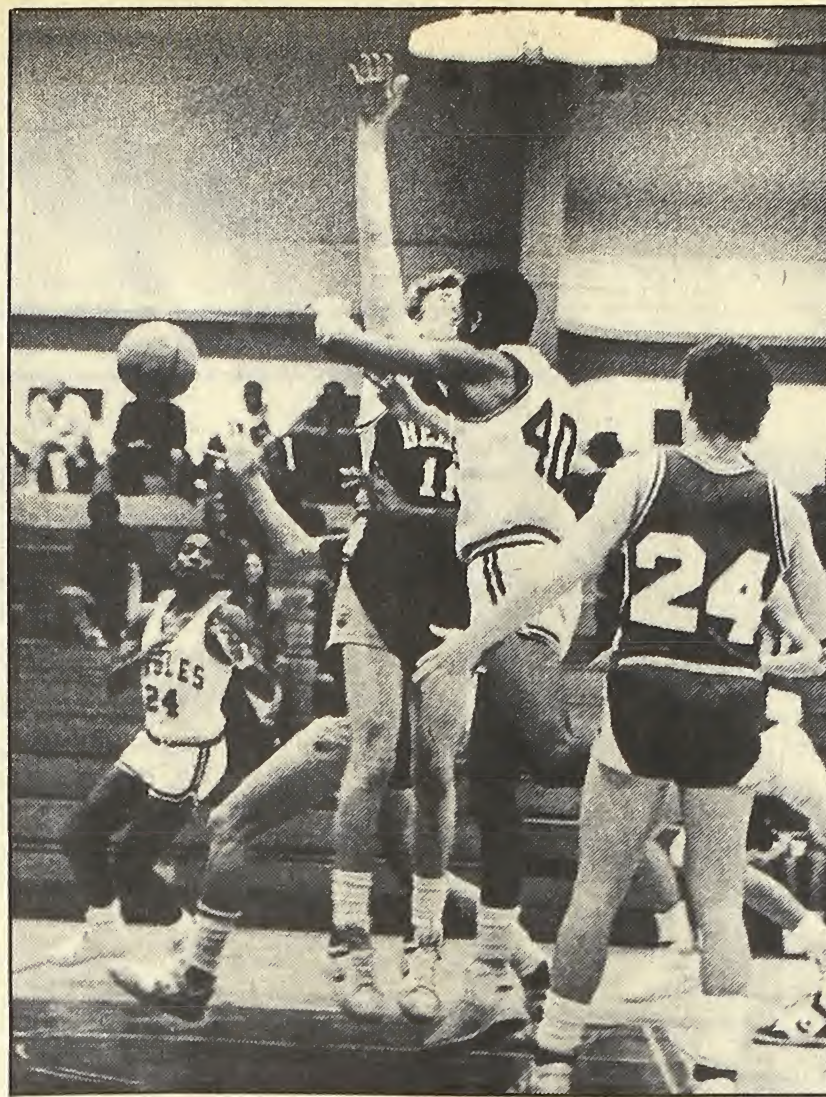

In the opening relay, Belleville combined the talents of Wally Rochowiak, Mike Ackron, Dave Traskos and John Kapitan who had the winning time of 1:51.3. The Tigers' winning combination for the freestyle relay included Eric Snider, Martin Duda, Rob Bunker and Rochowiak who turned in a 3:35.6.

Snider came back and won the 200-yard freestyle event in 1:55.9, while Scott Overholt claimed the 200-yard individual medley for the Tigers with a 2:24.9 effort. Bunker touched in first for the 50-yard freestyle with a 25.0.

Belleville also received first place performances from Duda, in the 100-yard butterfly (1:00); Doug Duff, in the 500-yard freestyle (5:34.9); Traskos, in the 100-yard backstroke (1:02.1) and Ackron who touched in at 1:05.9 in the 100-yard breaststroke.

ville lineup after being sidelined during December with a back injury. It took the Tiger 198-pounder a mere 47 seconds to convince Southgate Anderson's John Baffi who should wear the gold this year.

Yuhas came close to gold but was forced to settle for silver when Monroe's 126-pounder, Steve Pitcher, edged the Belleville grappler, 2-1. Clearwood was also forced to settle for silver when Lincoln Park's Dave Villareal won a 6-1 decision in the finals of the 119-pound match.

Belleville's Rob Gray placed third at 98-pounds while teammate, James Bishar, also wound up with a third place medal at 112. Andy Gohl, the Tigers' 132-pounder, won a major decision over Wyandotte's Lee Martin (11-2) in the consolation round of the 132-pound bout and Jim Keaton, Belleville's 138-pounder, finished fourth. Also fourth was the Tigers' 167-pounder, Darryl Lamie while Matt Bracken contributed a third place in the 185 pound class.

Belleville also received a third place finish with heavyweight Scott Small who defeated Wyandotte's John Mullin in 2:02 in the consolation finals.

Belleville will join other area wrestlers at the Class A district tournament scheduled for Saturday at Carlson.
